

Divider Module

The Divider Bar Module provides a visual separator between your content. A divider block is mostly about structure and readability, rather than content. It provides clear boundaries between ideas or sections and prevents content from feeling like a wall of text at the same time that it improves visual scanning for your users.

In design-heavy contexts like landing pages or documentation, divider modules also help guide the eye, especially when paired with spacing or headings. In general, if two chunks of content feel related but not the same, a divider can help clarify that separation without needing extra words.

To add a divider select Divide Bar from your module list and select “Add Module.”

Use the arrows on the right to move the divider to the relevant part of the page:
